SUFFOLK, VA (August 9, 2010) The City of Suffolk is examining information on today's Pentagon announcement about the future of Joint Forces Command. Suffolk Mayor Linda Johnson has been in contact with congressional leaders throughout the day. "We will continue to examine the information received and the implications it has for the City of Suffolk," advised Johnson.

Suffolk echoes the sentiments expressed by our Congressional leaders that USJFCOM plays a critical role in our nation's defense and homeland security efforts. The City of Suffolk is proud and honored to have a significant component of this command within our community. The contributions that USJFCOM and the Modeling, Simulation and Analysis industry have made in Suffolk, and the region, are important to our economy and have numerous positive impacts throughout the Commonwealth and our nation.
