Detective Rachelann Cain – VFW Law Enforcement Public Servant Citation

The Suffolk Police Department awarded Detective Rachelann Cain their Police Officer of the Year award for her investigative work as it relates to the arrest of a Suffolk resident, Lionel Nelson Williams, who was attempting to provide material support to ISIL. This case was investigated by the Norfolk Joint Terrorism Task Force, of which Detective Cain is assigned to, and the Suffolk Police Department. The FBI was informed in March of 2016 that Williams had been posting ISIL-related videos and content about supporting the group on his Facebook page. Williams allegedly posted that, "It's time for me to take a stand. I stand with "Dawlah." Dawlah is a term that means "state" in Arabic, and members of ISIL and supporters refer to the group using this term. In April of 2016, an undercover FBI agent made contact with Williams on Facebook. In a private Facebook message, Williams stated, "I can't wait for the day that the black flag of Islam exists all over Maryland, D.C., Virginia, and Chicago." In another exchange between October and November 2016, the agent told Williams on an encrypted messaging app that they were in territory controlled by ISIL and he was trying to purchase 10,000 rounds of AK-47 ammunition and 50 magazines. Williams asked how much the ammo would cost in that territory and said that he would try to help. Williams allegedly sent money and ammunition to a person he thought was helping ISIL. During the course of the investigation it was learned that Williams had purchased an AK-47 assault rifle the day after the terror attack in San Bernardino, California in December 2015.

In December of 2016, Detective Cain was headed out of town for Christmas and received a call from her supporting case agent requesting her to return to help due to the escalation of Williams' behavior. Detective Cain was about 2 hours from her destination when she turned around and returned back to Suffolk.

Once arriving back to Suffolk, Detective Cain immediately went into work. Based upon all of the information obtained, Williams was taken into custody on December 21, 2016 by members of the Joint Terrorism Task Force and the Suffolk Police Department. Two firearms, including an AK-47 and a semi-automatic handgun, were recovered in a post-arrest search of Williams' residence.

Detective Cain spent countless hours working on declassification for trial and discovery. This process included coordination with several Departments at the FBI, United States Attorneys and defense counsel. With these efforts, Lionel Nelson Williams accepted a plea deal on August 16, 2017 and is awaiting sentencing. He has agreed to serve 20 years in a Federal Prison.

If it were not for the investigative efforts of Detective Rachelann Cain, Williams may have been successful in aiding ISIL and his efforts could have resulted in countless deaths.

The VFW Law Enforcement Public Servant Citation is awarded to any individual who serves in a municipal, county, state or federal unit tasked with enforcement of the laws pertaining to their area of responsibility. This award does not apply to individuals employed by private companies for security services.
